

Dogs: Our Furry Friends

Read the passage below and answer the questions on the next page.

Dogs are one of the most beloved pets in the world. They are known for their loyalty, affectionate nature, and their ability to form strong bonds with their owners. Dogs are also incredibly intelligent animals and have been trained to perform a wide range of tasks, including search and rescue, guide work for the disabled, and even serving as therapy animals.

There are many different breeds of dogs, each with their own unique characteristics and personalities. Some breeds, like the German Shepherd and the Doberman Pinscher, are known for their strength and protective instincts, while others, like the Poodle and the Bichon Frise, are known for their elegance and grace.

Dogs require proper care and attention to thrive. They need a healthy diet, regular exercise, and frequent grooming to keep their coats clean and healthy. Proper training is also essential to ensure that dogs behave well and follow basic commands.

Dogs have also been shown to have numerous health benefits for their owners. Studies have found that owning a dog can help reduce stress levels, lower blood pressure, and increase physical activity.

Despite their many positive qualities, dogs can also pose a risk if not properly trained and handled. It is important for owners to be responsible and ensure that their dogs are kept under control in public spaces and around other people and animals.
